THE ANNUAL CATALOGUE

of Books, Pamphlets, &c. published during the year 1852 is now ready.

47, Ludgate Hill: March 15, 1853.

We had hoped the arrival of to-day's mail from Boston would have enabled us to lay satisfactory intelligence before our readers of the confirmation of the International Copyright Treaty. It is, however, still before the Senate; and we are informed by a correspondent that it is the subject of much discussion in committee. The general expression of the American public, "so far as we have had an opportunity of judging, has been one of pleasure and satisfaction at the prospect of an early settlement of the question."

Mrs. H. B. Stowe's "Key to Uncle Tom's Cabin" will be ready on the 19th inst. Sir A. Alison's "History of Europe" is about to be published, by Messrs. Blackwood, in shilling numbers. Mr. Kingsley's "Hypatia; or, New Foes with an Old Face," reprinted from Fraser's Magazine, will be ready in a few days. Lord Ingestrie has in the press a second series of "Meliora," dedicated to the Queen. A volume of Essays on Lord Bacon and Sir Walter Scott, by the late Editor of the Edinburgh Review, Professor Napier, is in the press.

Mr. Bentley publishes this week a new volume on "Turkey and Montenegro," by Mr. Skene; "An Englishwoman's Experience of America," by Marianne Finch; and a cheaper edition of Miss Mitford's "Recollections." Recent events in Montenegro have caused a large demand, in Germany, for Sir Gardiner Wilkinson's work on "Dalmatia and Montenegro," to meet which a smaller and cheaper German translation has been published in one volume 8vo. The second volume has appeared of Mr. Lossing's beautiful "Field Book of the American Revolution;" this completes a work which, take it altogether, is perhaps the most characteristic and national that American literature has produced.

Messrs. Nisbet and Co. have just published new editions of both of Miss Warner's popular tales, and announce amongst other works a small memento of the recent Patagonian mission, being a "Memoir of Mr. Richard Williams, the Surgeon of the Expedition," by Dr. Hamilton, author of "Life in Earnest."

"Rome, Regal and Republican, a History for Families," is announced by Messrs. Hall, Virtue, and Co., under the joint editorship of the Misses Jane and Agnes Strickland.—The first volume of Miss Bremer's long-expected work on America will be published on May 1st, under the title of "Home in the New World."—Mr. Jordan's "Memoirs" will be completed by the publication of the fourth vol. We are happy to notice the fact that this literary veteran has just been placed on the civil list for a pension of £100 a-year.

Messrs. Seeleys have just published a beautiful volume, from the pen of the Rev. C. B. Tayler, "Memorials of the English Martyrs," illustrated with upwards of thirty engravings; a new volume by the Rev. T. B. Birks, entitled "Modern Rationalism and the Inspiration of the Scriptures;" also "The Jesuits, an Historical Sketch," by the Rev. E. W. Grinfield.

Mr. Woolnoth has published his "Facts and Faces," illustrated by a series of graphic heads of all the dispositions of the mind.—Amongst the attractive works issued by Messrs. Ingram, Cooke, and Co. will shortly appear an extraordinarily cheap series of volumes, handsomely printed in fcp. 8vo., 160 pages, with six engravings, ornamental binding, one shilling each volume. The title of this series is equally promising and felicitous—"Tales of the City of London."

A BOOK FOR EVERY CHURCHMAN.

LAST GLIMPSSES of CONVOCATION in the CHURCH of ENGLAND. By ARTHUR J. JOYCE. Fcp. 8vo. 4s. 6d. cloth; or by post, 5s.

"A very ably written book. The real object of the author is to show the impolicy of reviving Convocation, by proving that when endowed with more power of debate it never did any good to the Church; but, on the contrary, produced evil. With this object Mr. Joyce takes an historical view of the proceedings from Pupal times to the extinction of Convocation."—SPECTATOR.

THE CHURCH BEFORE THE FLOOD.

Third Thousand, handsomely bound and gilt, fcp. 8vo. price 9s.

"For a well-considered, and at the same time eloquent exhibition of the fundamental principles deduced from the history of primeval humanity, we confidently refer the reader to the present work, with a full conviction that he will not consult it in vain. In a series of chapters which are marked by an easy flowing style, these questions are incidentally discussed with a force and clearness that cannot but be effectual in arming many with efficient arguments against an insinuating infidelity, and in building them up in their holy faith."—MORNING HERALD.

"It is written with great completeness, beauty, and lucidity. The volume may be read with profit by all professing Christians."—CHURCH AND STATE GAZETTE.

"A series of lectures on the Book of Genesis, in which the chief events recorded in that interesting portion of holy writ are explained and commented upon in Dr. Cumming's usual clear and attractive style. We have derived much pleasure from the perusal of the book, and we have no doubt that all its readers will be equally gratified, and, we trust, instructed."—MORNING ADVERTISER.

SABBATH EVENING READINGS ON THE NEW TESTAMENT.

Published in Monthly Numbers, price 4d.

PREFACE.—The reader will have, in successive Monthly Numbers, published at the lowest possible price, an attempt to supply a slightly critical, and a fair explanatory and practical comment on the Lesson or Chapter of the New Testament read on successive Sabbath evenings in public worship. The Author has found his exposition of the Lesson so useful, that he has very often shortened his sermon in order to prevent the necessity of curtailing the exposition. Long and elaborate commentaries are most important. The splendid critical edition of the New Testament by Alford is most precious; Bloomfield, Barnes, Henry, and Scott have their distinctive merits; but the Author thinks he may borrow an excellence from each, and combine with it the freedom of occasional digression, and the freshness of illustration and allusion which lend new interest, and which he hopes will be found in these comments. Such expositions will better suit family reading—men of business, who have less time for critical study of God's Holy Word than they could wish—schools, Scripture readers, city missionaries, and others, where a clear popular explanation is more interesting and even instructive, than learned and formal commentaries. Expositions good enough for a congregation are good enough for the public; if useful to one, they must be of some use to the other.

WELLINGTON: A LECTURE.

New and enlarged Edition, with valuable Additions. Fcp. cloth gilt, price 2s. 6d.

"The lecture is characterised by all the author's vigour of language, picturesqueness of style, and aptness of illustration; and though the theme be now somewhat a worn one, he has treated it in a way that gives it freshness, and heightens the interest which it cannot fail to inspire in every reader."—MORNING ADVERTISER.

"Of all the works written on the death, and reviewing the life, of the deceased hero, this alone bears the character of permanency. Its beauty, fulness of detail, richness of language, and general correctness, deserve to make it a standard work."—CHURCH AND STATE GAZETTE.

Being the Third and Fourth Volumes of "The Grenville Papers." Edited, with Notes, by WILLIAM J. SMITH, Esq. 2 vols. 8vo.—Nearly ready.

"The 'Grenville Papers' contain the hitherto unpublished correspondence of two of the leading statesmen of those times—Earl Temple and George Grenville—with their friends and contemporaries. The correspondence extends over a period of more than thirty years, and, during part of that time, we have also the Diary of George Grenville while Prime Minister, which forms an important feature in the Papers."—LITERARY GAZETTE.

"There is scarcely a letter or a page which does not tend to elucidate some obscure point in the history of the period..... We must express our opinion as to the great historical value of the work, and our satisfaction at the able and careful manner in which it has been prepared and edited."—ATHENÆUM.

"The interest of these papers is chiefly biographical and historical: biographical as regards the elder Pitt and the Grenville family, historical in reference to the time immediately succeeding the fall of Walpole till they close, about 1772..... There is a good deal of quiet character in Grenville's diary."—SPECTATOR.

TALES OF THE CITY OF LONDON.

Volume I.

Osbert of Aldgate: A Tale of the Goldsmiths' Company.

Handsomely printed in fcp. 8vo. 160 pages, ornamental binding, with Six Engravings. Price 1s.

Prospectus.

UNDER the title of "Tales of the City of London," it is proposed to publish a series of volumes which, while interesting and pleasing as works of fiction, will at the same time be correct delineations of the manners, customs, and habits of the citizens of London at various periods of history.

The tales will chiefly have connection with the great City Companies, of which so many traces of wealth and liberality remain, and of one or other of which each citizen was in former times a member.

The events of the tales will be laid in different periods, so that the whole will comprise a distinct and connected account (without repetitions) of the customs and costume, the houses, and the habits, and the modes of thought and action of the London citizens from the time of the Plantagenets to that of the Stuarts. No pains will be spared to render these accurate in every particular, and to each Tale will be added a number of notes, historical and descriptive, elucidatory of the text; and also an account of the particular Company to which the Tale refers.

Each Volume will be complete in itself, and contain about six engravings, carefully executed, in which the costume, architecture, of each period, &c., will be accurately represented.
